

Ali Berquez has a Clinical Lead role at the Michael Palin Centre. She qualified as a speech and language therapist from City University in 1993. She completed a foundation course in Personal Construct Psychology in 1994 and an MSc thesis comparing the View of Self in adults and adolescents who stammer from a Personal Construct Psychology perspective in 1996. She has worked at the Michael Palin Centre since 2000 and obtained a Post Graduate Diploma in Cognitive Therapy at the Oxford Cognitive Therapy Centre in 2005. Ali was Joint Project Lead for the Stammering Information Programme, to develop awareness and skills about stammering in the education workforce in the UK, which was completed in 2010. Her current role involves clinical work with all ages including adults, teaching nationally and internationally, writing, delivering clinical supervision and contributing to research projects. She regularly presents at conferences. Ali has managed and developed the Michael Palin Centre Teaching Programme for the past 8 years. She manages new referrals for children and young people to the Centre and marketing what the Centre provides to local SLT teams and commissioners.
